

Empowering Women through Resilience: Lakmali's Journey of Courage and Leadership

Lakmali is an inspiring woman who has shown remarkable courage in the face of extreme adversity. As a mother of two children, she has had to overcome numerous challenges while raising her sons single-handedly in the remote village of Kitulutuwa. Despite the difficulties she has encountered, Lakmali has demonstrated exceptional strength and resilience, and has worked tirelessly to provide for her family. In order to make ends meet, she has dedicated herself to supplying food to local shops, demonstrating remarkable ingenuity, resourcefulness, and determination. Lakmali is a true role model for us all, and her unwavering dedication to her family is an inspiration to everyone who knows her.

Lakmali had moments where she would skip her own meals to make sure her children were well-fed. Her commitment to her children's education is proof of her love and devotion as a mother. When she heard about the JSB project that was giving away chickens, she applied right away, taking advantage of the opportunity to improve her family's livelihood.

Lakmali took on a leadership role within her community and spearheaded the JSB project facilitated by the Hingurakgoda Divisional Secretariat. Her hard work and determination led to the successful management of the chicken farming project, which greatly benefited her family. By incorporating eggs into their diet, Lakmali enhanced the nutritional value of their meals and also sold more than 10 eggs per day and earned 700 LKR per day by selling in the roadside market. She implemented cost-effective methods such as feeding the chickens with homemade pet food rich in protein and vitamins. Additionally, she created a beautiful garden to supplement their diet with aazolla, a nutritious plant.

Lakmali's chickens are now producing an impressive number of eggs daily. These eggs not only contribute to their family's meals but also generate income. Lakmali has established a sustainable source of revenue for her family by supporting her husband by selling excess eggs to local villagers. The success of this project, supported by Japanese aid, is a testament to Lakmali's hard work and determination.
